Staff Training Summer Term 2014

During our weekly in-service training (INSET) sessions and as part of our ongoing professional development programme, our staff will be learning more about the new National Curriculum that will start in September 2014. We have already completed a significant amount of planning for English, maths and science and we will be extending that to the other curriculum subjects in preparation for September. There are major changes to the ICT curriculum (it will be called 'computing' from September) so the ICT advisor for Newham will be providing training and support throughout the summer term. She will also run a parent/carers' information session on 11th June, detailing the computing programme of study.

The Beach

I planned a beach holiday with my family last week
as it was sunny.

Excitedly, we travelled by National Express to Thorpe Bay beach.

Unfortunately, it was a rainy day.

But despite this we decided we were going to have fun.
My dad and I enjoyed playing cricket with fresh rain falling on our faces.

Even though it rained, we put our mats down and made sandcastles with the wet sand.

We had sandwiches and cakes and hot chocolate at
'Uncle Tom's Cabin', a quaint coffee shop.

We met some cute pet dogs of the other visitors.

"Wow! What a wonderful day it was despite the rain," I thought as the train chugged along.
